1. The lignite (wood coal) mine of Sostanj is situated on the Sostanj-Velenje road, four kilometers from Sostanj and two from Velenje. The mine employs 2,000 workers and produces 100 carloads (sic) daily. Lignite from the mine supplies fuel for operating a central station which supplies all the electric energy needed to operate mining machinery and lights. The mine has a planing shop where all wooden construction is built for the mine, and where wood (sic) is prepared for shipment.
2. The mine is connected to a railroad and when the lignite has been mined and graded according to size, it is shipped according to the plan for distribution. There is only one shaft for both men and material.
3. Engineer Jozе Gostinsek is manager of the mine. His assistant is Jozе Prebil, Secretary of the Communist Party in this locality and representative of the mine. Engineer Pepi Groganac, is on the staff. Industrial Militia men, of whom there are 26 and who are headed by a standard bearer, guard the mine. The attached sketch depicts further details and the location of the mine, and the legend gives an explanation on the individual objectives.
